

Message Processing Choices

Messages can be processed in a synchronous or asynchronous manner.

The Synchronous illustration shows typical client/server synchronous communication between a client on the left and a server on the right.

The Asynchronous illustration suggests a pair of peer applications communicating in both directions using a separate destination for each direction.